

Growing, Learning, Thriving

By Kevin Gorman, Executive Director • kevin@gorgefriends.org

Friends of the Columbia Gorge entered its 26th year this year, and like most of us at 26, finds “adulthood” to be an exciting and challenging prospect. We saw several transitions for the organization, including:

Leadership: Friends’ founder Nancy Russell guided us for a quarter century, but Nancy’s diagnosis of amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (also known as Lou Gehrig’s disease), has tested our mettle to take up her work and expand it. We have risen to the occasion raising necessary funds, building support, and moving our agenda. As we look to the future, we are stronger than ever.

Trust and Longevity: Major financial contributions from the estate of Norman Yeon ($4.5 million) and, in July 2007, from Seattle donor Anthony Hovey – a $1-million matching contribution to our Cape Horn Campaign (see page 3) – demonstrate a new level of support and trust for our donors.

The Columbia River Gorge National Scenic Area, just six years younger than this organization, is also in transition.

Changing Counties: Once in an adversarial relationship with Friends as well as the Gorge Commission and the Forest Service, Skamania County’s planning office is now proactive in upholding Scenic Area standards. In addition, the County has embraced the Cape Horn Trail project, and one of its Commissioners will be leading one of our hikes this fall.

Changing Development: Ten years ago, development concerns focused on manufactured homes, trailers, and self-built houses with site plans created by landowners. Today, pressure comes from 5,000+ square foot houses, complete with teams of architects and landscape planners. This has led Friends to become more sophisticated and adept with GIS mapping, visual simulations, and related technologies.

Changing Threats: Many of the threats we face today (tribal casino, destination resort, air quality), did not exist ten years ago, and our strategies and approaches to Gorge protection have matured to keep pace. As we create our plan of action for the coming years, we will continue to look ahead at potential scenarios that could play out in the Gorge so we are ready to meet those challenges as they arise.

Annual Report

2006-07 Accomplishments & Major Challenges

By Michael Lang, Conservation Director, michael@gorgefriends.org and Nathan Baker, Staff Attorney, nathan@gorgefriends.org

Funding to purchase spectacular landscapes and important habitat: Friends staff worked with our congressional delegation to add $1 million in Senate and House spending bills for Gorge Forest Service land acquisition, despite being zeroed out in the President's budget. If these funds come through, the Forest Service intends to pursue acquisition of the Cleveland property currently owned by Friends' land trust. In addition, the Forest Service is looking at land across from Beacon Rock.

Clearing the air: Friends and allies secured $390,000 for the Oregon Department of Environmental Quality to monitor Columbia Gorge Air Quality, and worked to ensure creation of a task force to study emissions from a large dairy operation effecting Gorge air quality.

Fully-funded Columbia River Gorge Commission: In Salem and Olympia, Friends worked with lawmakers to secure the largest Columbia River Gorge Commission budget in its 20-year history. With a full budget, the Commission has promised to launch its Indicators Project to study the cumulative effects of development in the Gorge.

Keeping Measure 37 out of the Gorge: The Columbia River Gorge National Scenic Area is safe from Measure 37 thanks to a major Friends' court victory. In February 2007, the Oregon Court of Appeals agreed with Friends that the Scenic Area rules are required by federal law and thus are not subject to Measure 37.

Protecting cultural resources: Friends prevailed in a legal case involving the protection of Native American cultural resources in the Gorge. A Wasco County resident, who began mining without a permit and wantonly destroyed cultural resources in the process, was enjoined from further ground-disturbing activity. The landowner sued the State of Oregon, claiming that the injunction effected a "taking" of his property rights. The Oregon Court of Appeals agreed with Friends that no taking had occurred.

Defending Gorge protections: Friends participated in two legal appeals before the Columbia River Gorge Commission to help Gorge counties defend their land-use decisions. In both cases the Commission agreed with the counties and Friends.

▶ OUTREACH & VOLUNTEER PROGRAMS

Volunteers 2006/07: Friends members and volunteers helped to keep Gorge protections strong in 2006/07. Our thanks to these active Gorge supporters who led hikes, conducted research, attended meetings, entered data, and helped in countless other ways in our Portland and Hood River offices.

Outdoor Programs

By Renee Tkach, renee@gorgefriends.org

Friends' outdoor programs continue to encourage more people to enjoy, explore, and steward the magnificent Columbia Gorge.

- ▶ Nearly 1000 hikers participated in 70 outings offered in our Fall 2006 and Spring 2007 Hiking Programs.
- ▶ 125 outdoor volunteers helped ensure safe and enjoyable Gorge experiences for hikers.
- ▶ 30 new hike leaders received training through Friends' Hike Leader/Shepherd Training Program.
- ▶ Friends' Stewardship Symposium at the Columbia Gorge Discovery Center featured a dozen Gorge organizations offering information on creating sustainable Gorge communities.
- ▶ Friends participated in formation of the Cape Horn Conservancy, a Skamania County group to help oversee authorization of the Cape Horn Trail.
- ▶ Friends' speakers offered twelve slide show presentations and talks to community groups throughout the region.
- ▶ Staff and volunteers provided information at Friends outreach tables at eight festivals, reaching thousands of people with our Gorge protection message.
- ▶ More than 400 new subscribers signed up as e-activists on our e-mail action alerts list.

The Fundraising Year-in-Review

By Jane Harris, Development Director, jane@gorgefriends.org

Membership Support: Fundraising from our general membership and new members grew nearly 10 percent over last year to $384,000. This total is comprised of membership renewals, special appeal gifts, and new member gifts. It does not include corporate donations, foundations, memorials, bequests or gifts to the Land Trust or Endowment.

Endowment: Due to interest income and funds transferred from the Yeon bequest, our endowment grew from $561,000 to $1,497,000. Donors are attracted to the endowment because their gifts remain in perpetuity while Friends can count on revenue from the interest earnings to provide on-going funding for programs.

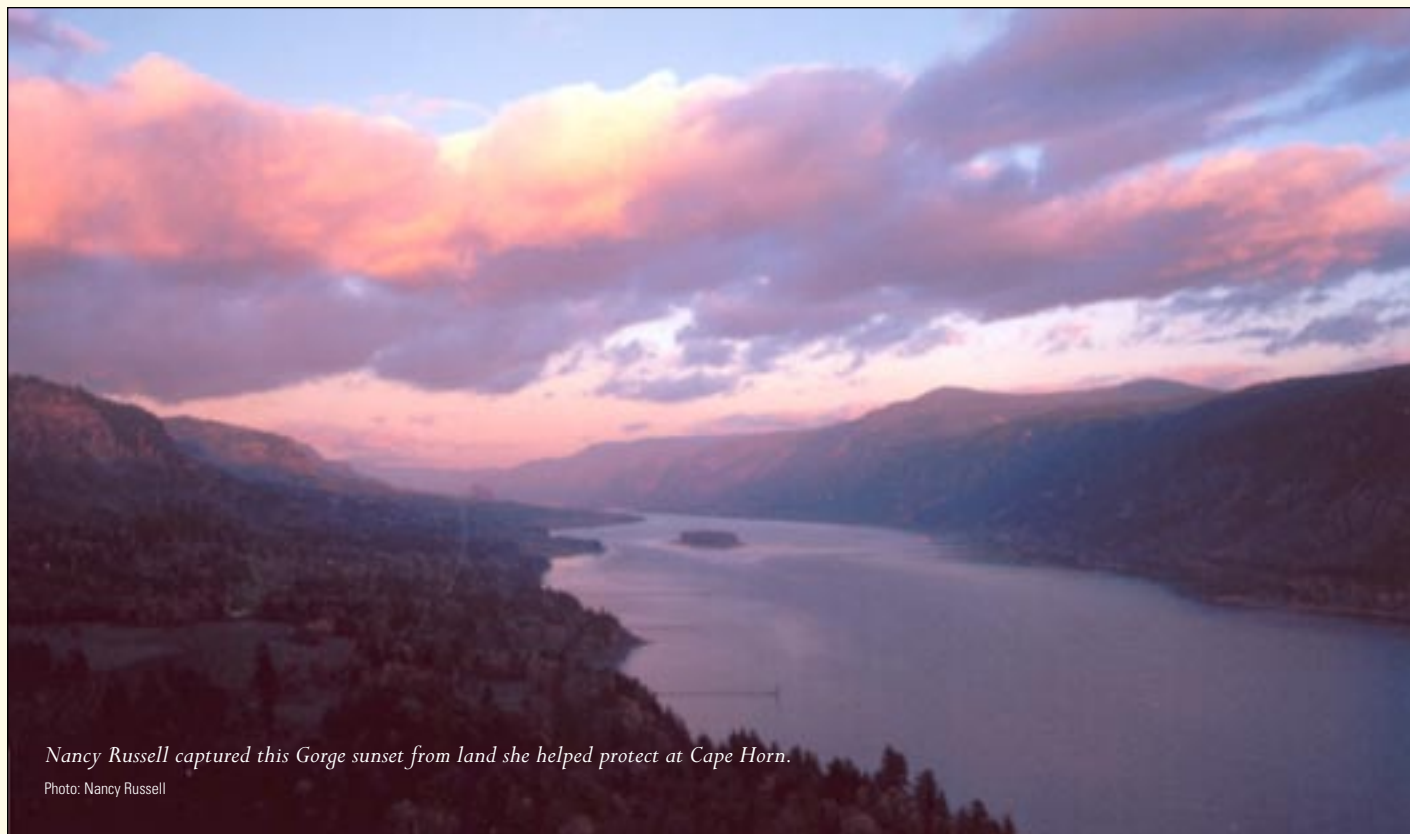

Campaign for Cape Horn: This two-year campaign has a goal of raising $4 million. Funds will be used to cover our costs in purchasing a four-acre parcel with a home on the rim of Cape Horn and another 32-acre property close by. With the completion of these two transactions, our vision for a public park covering 1000 acres and offering spectacular views from the Washington side of the Gorge will be realized.

Our first year of the campaign has been extremely successful, raising slightly more than $3 million to date. Our largest gift, $1 million, came in July 2007 from Seattle resident and long-time supporter, Anthony Hovey. In making the gift Hovey stated that he made it for three reasons:

*Friends of the Columbia Gorge: Working to ensure that the beautiful and wild Columbia Gorge remains a place apart,
an unspoiled treasure
for generations to come.*

his love of the Gorge, his appreciation for the careful fiscal management of the organization, and most of all because he had the utmost admiration for Nancy Russell and her steadfast dedication to protecting the place she loves so well.

Nancy Russell captured this Gorge sunset from land she helped protect at Cape Horn.
