

FRIENDS OF THE COLUMBIA GORGE

July 2007-June 2008 Annual Report

LOOKING TO THE FUTURE

... to make the difference between paradise saved and paradise lost.

Dear Friends,

Nearly three decades ago, the future founder of Friends of the Columbia Gorge, Nancy Russell, looked out from the Vista House to the Mount Pleasant farmlands across the river and pondered the future of the Gorge, as well as her own. John Yeon and others had asked Nancy to lead an effort to protect the Gorge, and she knew the effort could consume her life. Fortunately for all of us, she took the challenge.

This past summer, two dozen staff and board members of Friends of the Columbia Gorge gathered at Menucha Conference Center, not far from the Vista House, to again ponder the future of the Gorge. The result was the 2008–2011 Strategic Plan for Friends of the Columbia Gorge, online at www.gorgefriends.org.

We're proud of the plan, but recognize that it is simply a tool. Achieving success takes vision and action. The strategic plan brings our vision down to earth with specific goals. It also provides a road map for action. Nancy Russell guided Friends to be an organization of action, but today we face even larger, more sophisticated threats, along with greater opportunities for collaboration and changing demographics in the Gorge. Thoughtful planning to guide our actions can make the difference between paradise saved and paradise lost.

As we witness forest and farmlands around the planet being devoured by development, we must thank those who came before us for recognizing the one-of-a-kind beauty of the Gorge and for giving their all to protect it. Those early trailblazers now look to us to continue what they started. In the coming years, success will come only through the hard work of staff, board, and volunteers, and with the generous support of our members. Help us carry on what Nancy started three decades ago.

2007-08 Conservation and Legal Accomplishments

Citizen advocacy. Legal action. Federal funding.

Friends' Conservation and Legal staff use a broad range of strategies and tools to ensure that the Columbia Gorge is protected for coming generations. Here are some highlights of our activity in the past year:

Opposing a Gorge casino: Throughout the past year, Friends continued to block plans for a massive tribal casino resort in the Columbia Gorge. We filed formal comments criticizing the Bureau of Indian Affairs' inadequate environmental review of the project and helped expose undue tribal influence over the casino process.

Protecting Gorge air: With our environmental allies, we announced plans to sue Portland General Electric for violating the Clean Air Act at its coal-fired power plant in Boardman, which causes acid rain and fog and impaired visibility in the Gorge.

Curbing industrial and commercial development: A successful Friends lawsuit resulted in prohibiting all future expansion of existing industrial development within the National Scenic Area, and we convinced the Oregon Supreme Court to review three Gorge Commission decisions to authorize commercial development in the Scenic Area.

Improving environmental review: As a result of two Friends courtroom victories, the U.S. Forest Service will now be required to more thoroughly review the potential environmental impacts of proposed land use and development projects in the Scenic Area.

Promoting responsible wind power: We reviewed three major industrial wind projects proposed along the National Scenic Area boundary, and reached a settlement with one wind developer to relocate turbines to reduce their scenic impact.

Funding for parks and trails: Friends continued to work with key allies in Congress, securing a $1 million appropriation for Gorge land acquisition in the 2008 federal budget and $260,000 in federal highway funding for design of a Cape Horn pedestrian underpass. The House of Representatives has approved $2 million in the pending 2009 budget to acquire and protect wildlife habitat and scenic property in the Gorge.

beautiful and wild Columbia Gorge remains a place apart, an unspoiled treasure for generations to come.*

Outreach Programs

Friends' Outreach programs continue to bring new Gorge enthusiasts as well as long-time supporters out to enjoy, explore, and become engaged in protecting the Columbia River Gorge.

- More than 1,000 hikers participated in Friends' Fall 2007 and Spring 2008 hiking program, including 75 new members.
- Seventy-six outdoor volunteers took the lead in offering educational hikes and trail experiences that outlined the Gorge's past, present, and future.
- Our outdoor program recruited 19 new hike leaders and shepherds.
- We partnered with 10 Gorge-focused agencies and groups to reach out to new audiences.
- In partnership with the National Forest Foundation, Friends organized 150 volunteers to participate in three stewardship events at Forest Service sites throughout the Gorge.
- Staff and volunteers participated in 10 festivals, school events, and workplace fairs, providing information to more than 2,500 individuals about Friends' work to protect the Gorge.
- Friends continued to work with the Cape Horn Conservancy, Skamania County, the City of Washougal, the Washington Trails Association, and the U.S. Forest Service on development plans for a Cape Horn trail.

Thank you to all our outstanding volunteers!

Land Trust

Friends of the Columbia Gorge Land Trust acquired more than 120 acres of Gorge land in 2007–2008, preventing construction of numerous “trophy” houses in key viewing areas. From the open expanses east of Dallesport, Washington, to sweeping meadows at Mosier, Oregon, and further west across the river at Cape Horn, our acquisitions showcase the Gorge’s ecological diversity.

Dalles Mountain Road: East of Dallesport, Washington

Our purchase of the 64-acre Dancing Rock Ranch prevents an over-sized, highly visible house from being erected here. The acquisition preserves unique geological features, rare eastern Gorge wildflowers, and a pond scoured out by the Ice Age Floods that are treasures for everyone.

Mosier Plateau: Wasco County, Oregon

Two beautiful properties totaling 44 acres were donated by Friends founder Nancy Russell, just east of the city limits of Mosier. Nancy removed two manufactured homes prior to the donation, and 50 species of wildflowers were identified on these parcels last spring.

Mosier Plateau: Mosier urban area, Wasco County, Oregon

This 2.65-acre purchase inside the Mosier urban area is adjacent to Nancy’s donated parcel and will preclude structures from being built on a section of the bluff rim above Mosier.

Columbia Riverfront: Eastern Skamania County, Washington

Our purchase of this 9.5-acre waterfront parcel prevents construction of a riverfront trophy home. The property may eventually become part of a water trail along the river.

Cape Horn: Skamania County, Washington

The Land Trust had the 5,000-square-foot Cleveland house and barn deconstructed and removed this year, with a majority of materials recycled for reuse. We have entered into a contract to sell this spectacular four-acre property to the U.S. Forest Service in fall 2008, to be part of a proposed public trail system.

Fundraising Year in Review

Friends' 2007–2008 fundraising year was the most successful year in our history. We gained 960 new members, exceeded all our fundraising goals, and drew record attendance to our Annual Meeting, Conservator Event, and Summer Picnic. Our membership is the foundation of our success and we are deeply grateful to our more than 5,000 active members for their loyal support.

In addition to our membership program, we were awarded $191,000 in foundation grants and we are wrapping up our $4 million Campaign for Cape Horn, with $3.6 million raised for the project to date.

Getting Kids Outdoors

A new fund has been established in our endowment to support Gorge education for school-aged children in southwest Washington. A long-time Friends member, Phyllis Clausen, established the Vic Clausen Youth Fund to honor her late husband and address their shared goal of building support for Gorge protection in the next generation.

Through this fund, Friends provided a day of hands-on Gorge education activities this spring for all seventh-grade students in the Washougal School District. For some of these students, our program was their first real outdoor experience in the Gorge. Teachers reported it was the students' favorite activity of the year.

Public funding for outdoor school programs has been cut significantly. We are calling on the community to support the Vic Clausen Youth Fund to make sure our children still have quality opportunities to connect with the natural world in the Columbia Gorge. Please contact Jane Harris at 503-241-3762 x102 to support this fund.

“Our membership is the foundation of our success...”
